My first duty was to wait upon his Excellency the Governor-general Kaptzevitch, to whom I had the pleasure of being known in Kazan. I was received as usual, and every attention and kindness were renewed to me by my old companions. My passports were also renewed, a public order was given for every legal assistance to be rendered me, and I again prepared to start. Omsk appeared, like most places in Siberia, to have undergone a considerable change, for the streets are kept clean, the gaps are all filled up with new houses, public buildings have been erected for many of the chief officers, a cloth manufactory has been established and is already at work, and the lame, blind, deaf and dumb are employed in it; the streets are no longer traversed by the begging poor, and a more military air pervades the town than formerly; more of real justice is administered along the whole line of demarcation, and consequently more general satisfaction and tranquillity prevail. I attended an examination of the young Cossacks, three hundred and fifty in number, and, considering their ages, thought them very well advanced in reading, writing, and arithmetic; the senior classes have also made considerable progress in drawing, fortification, algebra, and mathematics; and one, a distinct class, in the art of surveying, with the view of being employed to survey the whole of Siberia. They are well clothed,...
