Edinburgh, 1829. Xtd a new planet dropped at once alongside of the old, Europe--could not have been more astonished than when she opened her eyes, at the first discovery of America, on the unknown companion which had been sleeping for ages at her side. It was the heroic age of Geography. The outline, too, of this new nature, seemed struck with a bolder hand. The contemporaries of an event so marvellous, may be well excused, if, amidst the novelty of such excitements, their expectations were turned more towards an El Dorado, and a Fairy Land, than to any mere variety and modification of their own worn and work-a-day world. A long and painful...
